Report Highlights:

This report highlights promotional activities in South Africa. Visit Post 2004 Exporter Guide (Gain Report SF4030, dated 8/16/2004) to see which high value products have shown consistent growth over the last five years and represent important opportunities for U.S. exporters. 2003/4 saw a significant strengthening in the value of the Rand. The combination of a weak dollar, strong euro and strong South African rand is helping to increase American exports to South Africa. FAS/Pretoria is currently recruiting for Hostex tradeshow, scheduled between March 13-16, 2005. Deadline for receipt of application and recruitment is January 15, 2005.

Title:	Natural & Organic Products Exhibition
Dates:	October 14 – 16, 2005
Venue:	Capetown Convention Center Cape Town, SOUTH AFRICA
Contact Information:	Specialized Exhibitions Shows and Events Tel: 27-21-671-0935 Fax: 27-21-671-0176 Email: Janine@specialised.com

Brief Narrative: This show is an annual event, which will alternate in venue between Sandton, Johannesburg; and Cape Town, South Africa. The 2005 show will be held in Cape Town. There is no doubt that the United States has led the way in this natural and organic industry, ie from natural and organic remedies to organic farming. South Africa welcomes all support, encouragement and advice the U.S. exporters have to offer, because many wealthy consumers in South Africa are embracing natural and organic options.

Feedback on June 2004 Natural & Organic Expo: Post visited the first Natural and Organic Exhibition in June, held at Sandton, Johannesburg. The show attracted buyers from the retails sector, health stores, pharmacies and other specialist stores offering products for this changing lifestyle. The exhibitions were divided into a number of specific sections such as beverages, foods, beauty and skincare, vitamins and supplements, general products and services. This was a small show, but at least the organizers are well organized, attentive to details and trying to improve the show for the future. The organizers feels that education is the key to expanding this market, and the other goal is to educate the farmers to convert from conventional farming to organics. The Natural & Organic industry in South Africa is in its early stage, and reaching and educating consumers is going to take time.

A natural products boom is taking off in South Africa which means less preservatives and growth hormones in South Africa food supply as mainstream food processors consider healthier options. The organizers are committed to the industry and to the education process to improve the show for the future, through aggressive media coverage, such as radio stations, TV stations, newspapers and specialized media such as health/journal publications. The 2004 show attracted a total attendance of 6,213 over the three days. There were approximate 90 local exhibitors, and no international exhibitors. One of the major retailers in South Africa, Woolworths, was a key exhibitor and sponsor of this show and is always looking for natural organic products. Woolworths had double digit sales growth for organic foods in 2004.

Post will continue visiting the show to access it for future participation.

Title:	Africa Big Seven

Brief Narrative: Africa's Big Seven is Africa's annual international trade fair for the retail sector. Previously it was called the "Mega Show". In 2003 the organizers saw The Mega-show rebranded as Africa's Big Seven following the inclusion of several non-food sectors. It is a combination of three trade shows which used to operate separately such as Pan African Retail trade exhibition (Supermarket, Forecourt, Convenience, Homeware and Hardware); Agri-Food (Manufacturers and Producers Expo); and the Retail Solutions Africa (Retail IT, Security, Shop fitting, Store Layout, and Merchandising). The show targets the retail industry and agri-food industry.

Feedback on the July 2004 Africa's Big Seven Show: Post visited the 2004 show. The show was opened to the public. It was a medium sized show, though seven times the size of the previous show which was hyped as Mega Show. The show is growing rapidly and has the potential to be the definitive event of its type for Southern Africa. The show attracted 6892 visitors from 35 countries. There were 157 companies that participated at the show as exhibitors. The Department of Trade and Industry (DTI) Agro-processing Trade and Investment division attracted buyers mainly from the EU member states, Japan, Canada, and Ethiopia. Buyers were from priority export countries and have expressed interest in sourcing fresh fruit and vegetables products from South Africa in addition to canned and processed foods.

Additionally, improvements in cold-chain technology at the Johannesburg International Airport enables more retailers to import more fresh produce from neighboring countries.

Brief Narrative: This is an every odd year event held in Cape Town, South Africa. The Fifth “Fish Africa” exhibition will be staged in Cape Town on October 2005. Jointly organized by Heighway Events of London and Johannesburg’s Exhibition Management Services, the show, which brings together international equipment suppliers and the fishermen and fishing company managers of Southern Africa including other representatives from France, India, Ireland, Italy, Spain and Thailand.

Feedback on the October 2003 Fish Africa Show: Post visited the 2003 show. This show was fairly small, with 104 exhibitors, and attracted 3,271 visitors. The organizers confirmed that the show was smaller than previous shows, because apparently the show was held at the same time as other big shows in Europe. Most of the exhibitors were selling fishing equipment, rather than consumer ready fish products. Amongst the exhibitors was India Fisheries Export promotion with consumer ready fish products on display, but not for tasting. Other countries represented at this shows were Spain and Italy, also exhibiting fishing equipment.

FAS/Pretoria strategic planning for Fishery Events: Post in conjunction with the Deputy Commissioner for International Trade, State of Virginia, is conducting a joint market research project in October/November 2004, to meet with key players in the South African seafood industry to determine their interest in buying U.S. fishery products. If a positive response is received from the research, post plan to lead a buyers mission from South Africa to attend the Boston Seafood show scheduled for March 13 – 15, 2005. Post will also consider a reverse mission by U.S. suppliers of seafood products as exhibitors at Fish Africa 2005 scheduled in October 2005, Cape Town, South Africa.
